

Unsaid Feelings

-PBC

A love exposed, a well profound,
My genuine heart, forever bond.
Yet soundless gaps, where whispers stray,
She cannot see, my love's dismay.

Unending words, I'd humbly speak,
A timeless debt, my soul to seek.
But to be gone, a bitter dread,
My ceaseless plea, to stay instead.

A hidden verse, I'd strive to say,
My soul's own tongue, in gentle sway.
But barren space, where echoes cease,
You're far away, beyond all peace.

In shadowed nights, my tears did flow,
A deep despair, I came to know.
Yet veiled cascades, a world astray,
Reality's form, slipped far away.

A hazy view, my eyes will keep,
A lonely watch, while others sleep,
But frozen words, a spirit's sigh,
A boundless reach, I can't deny.

Love's journey lost, a fading trace,
My spirit's quest, could find no place.
Yet love's own fire, it will endure,
I loved it deep, forever pure.

Her gaze is distant, cold and bare,
No loving warmth, to ease my care.
Yet lonely hope, a fading spark,
A single chance, within the dark.

Within her past, my spirit stays,
Her love, a compass, lights my ways.
No passing fancy, light and thin,
But her deep heart, where I begin.

Along my path, you're close and near,
A needed part, held ever dear.
Though years may change, and roads may bend,
My treasured times, will never end.

My quiet wish, a voice suppressed,
To share with you, my soul's request.
No path revealed, no way to find,
But faith persists, within my mind.

Her book's edge, a faint, small sign,
My heart's full text, her golden line.
She chose a pause, a fleeting stay,
I held her light, come what may.